We can prove by our books that three out of every five persons that consume a case of the famous £TNA MINERAL WATERS receive direct and certain benefit, for our ledger shows that three out of every five that purchase the first case return for the second, third, fourth and fifth, many of them continuing its use indefinitely. It is a certain specific for Liver and Kidney Disorders, Dyspepsia and Rheumatism. This is not merely a statement, but a ract established by our sales, in hundreds of instances of over twenty consecutive cases to the same person. Another significant evidence lies in the fact that although the astonishing effect of these mineral waters was not generally known on the subject of public discussion till within the last three months, yet within that time, in fact, since April 11th last, the sales have increased till they are now eight times what they were at that date. CALIFORNIA'S LOSS.

Unexpected Death of Ex-United States Senator A. A. Sargent. SAN FRANCISCO, August 14th.-[Special.]-Ex-United States Senator A. A. Sargent died to-day at his residence, 1630 Folsom street, in this city. He had been slightly ailing for some time past, but his death was unexpected. The Call to-morrow will say:

Of the pioneers of California few, if any, are better known than Aaron A. Sargent. He has lived in the State continually for 38 years, much of which time has been passed in the public service. He began his adult life as a compositor in Sacramento [on the Union]. He was earnest, industrious and frugal, and in a short time abandoned the case for the editorial tripod. The public generally first heard of him in Nevada unty in 1856, when Fremont was nomiby the newly-formed Republican party for President. Mr. Sargent was then part owner and responsible manager for the Nevada Journal, and his interests dictated ost any course but that of the advocacy of the then Republican principles. Unwilling either to stifle his own convictions of right, or to risk the ruin of the property of which he had charge, he resigned his position as editor and ok the stump for the Republican ticket. From that day to the hour of his death he was one of the trusted leaders of that party. He served for a period in the lower House of Congress, and in 1872 was elected to the Senate. In that emi nent body he held rank with the first class, Though never reaching the position occupied by a few of the leaders on ither side, he was an honest, intelligent and determined legislator. He never voted for a measure he did not believe in, nor was he ever deterred from voting for one he did believe in. He was a strong party man, aud never faltered in his support of Republican measures. He had force of character and ability, but was in some espects deficient in tact. He made enemies om a more plastic character would have conciliated, and became the target of a little interparty contest, with the result that he retired for a time from public life. Under the Arthur Administration Mr. Sargent was urged by the body of Pacific coast Republicans for the position of Secretary of the Inerior. President Arthur apparently thought California not quite entitled to a Cabinet position, but he tendered Mr. Sargent the German mission, which was accepted. It was while Mr. Sargent was in Germany that the controversy concerning the exclusion of American pork arose, and some statements which Mr. Sargent addressed to the Washington Government caused strained relations between the German Chancellor and the American Minister. Mr. Sargent soon after resigned and returned to the State. He has since held no public office. He was a candidate for the United States Senate when Mr. States Senate whe which was accepted. It was while Mr. Sargent person wishing Bucks, it will be to their interest to call or write to Stanford was pominated and returned to the State. He has since held no public office. He was a can distribute to Stanford was pominated and was accident. regarded as a candidate in 1886, until the returns showed thtat a Democratic Legislature had been elected. He then announced to his imate friends that he should not again seek what he regarded as a vindication from the aspersions of the anti-Sargent clique in the party. As a member of Congress and as a Senator no man was more effective in work for the State than Mr. Sargent. He had great capacity for work, and quickly mastered the details of legislation. Although a native of Mas sachusetts, he was warmly attached to his adopted State, and whether in office or out sought to promote its best interests. A useful and honorable life has come to an abrupt end. It was only within the past few days that Sen ator Sargent had been forced, through illness remain at home, and at no time-even up to the hour of his death-were his symptoms thought to be serious. In fact, his indisposition had not become known outside his immediate circle of personal friends. Frank M. Stone. Senator Sargent's law partner, had been absent in New York for several months past attending to an important case, and was only recalled to this city upon receipt of a letter from his partner stating that he was ill and unable to attend to the business of the firm. Upon his arrival here he was assured by not only the family, but by the physician, that the Senator would recover, although it would require three months for him to regain his strength. A PEACEFUL AND PAINLESS DEATH. On Saturday evening he spent some three ours at the house, every one being in a cheerful frame of mind, and when he left he did so inder the impression that Mr. Sargent would fully recovered in a short time. "To day," said Mr. Stone, "I received the intelligence that my partner was dead. Hurrying to his esidence I found the news to be only too true. The members of his family informed me that they were in the room with the Senator and were quietly conversing together, when upon looking up the awful fact was revealed to them that the husband and father was no more. He was in bed at the time, and he died without making the slightest sound or displaying any indications of approaching dissolution. BY THE SEASIDE.

SANTA CRUZ, August 14th.-The First Artillery SANTA CRUZ, August 14th.—The First Artillery Regiment arrived at 5:30 this morning from Sacramento, and preceded to camp in the same field as the regulars, who have been here for a month. The camp has been crowded with risitors all day. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the first Artillery had a dress parade, which was very awkard, compared with that of the regulars, who afterward gave an invitation drill beore 5,000 people, which was very fine, the utilitia boys leading in the applause. THE ARIZONA BANDITS. Officers Working on Clues, but Making Little Headway. Tucson, August 14th.—Sheriff Mike Nugent, Chris. Christensen and two Yuma Indian trailers have returned from tracking the robbers. After leaving the save the robbers went straight up the mountain above. At the apex of the range there is an immense rock, and the robbers appear to have remained in this vicinity for some time, as they had several times walked backward and forward along its base before going down the side of the range, almost at right angles from where they went up. At the bottom of the range is a deep canyon, which divides it from an adjoining spur of the same range. This they crossed and then started in a dizzy course for the top of the spur which overlooks Pantano. On the top they rested and lunched, and left some dried meat and biscuits and potatoes. It was impossible to track them any further. Finally, just at dark on Friday night, the trail was again struck on the flat, near the old deserted station, about one mile from Mountain Spring. The posse went into camp intending to take up the trail at daylight yesterday morning, but a violent rain-storm which came up in the night completely obliterated the tracks. The indications were that the robbers were going directly toward Pantano. The posse went there, but could learn nothing, and were still on the search when Nugent came away.

On examination of the Mountain Springs house, a number of giant caps were found under the floor, and in the cave a new gold ring was found. It is now in the possession of Detective Harris. The whereabouts of the robbers is entirely a matter of conjecture. They undoubtedly went toward or to the railroad, but beyond that nothing was known at the time of his leaving. This confirms the statement that but two men were engaged in the robbers will, as before, escape scot free.

General Traffic Manager J. C. Stubbs was recalled, and Chairman Pattison asked him to furnish to the Commission a statement of the entire amount of rebates which have been paid by the Central Pacific Company since its organization to date. Mr. Stubbs replied that he understood that such a statement had been called for from the company's Controller, and that he had agreed to furnish it.

Quite an extended discussion and questioning followed concerning the issuance of passes to shippers to induce business, etc., but was of no general interest.

In answer to questions by Anderson, witness said that the freight traffic was increasing, both in value and volume. In answer to the further question, "What other transcontinental lines are in contemplation which will compete with the Central Pacific and Union Pacific?"

Mr. Stubbs replied: "I don't know of any that are in contemplation, but I would like to state this: The Canadian Pacific may hardly be said to be in full operation yet, but when it gets in full working order its competition will be strongly felt. The Northern Pacific, another competing transcontinental line, has recently completed a line to Tacoma and will very shortly be another heavy competitor."

"In regard to local traffic, what is the prospect for the local portion of the aided road?"

"I think it is good, and undoubtedly is growing. The country east of Sacramento is a productive region, which in time will add materially to the business of the aided portion of the Central Pacific."

THE NATIONAL PARK. Army Officers to Have Charge of Yellow stone Park Henceforth.

WASHINGTON, August 14th.—[Special.]—The Interior Department authorities are coming to the conclusion that the detail of army officers to take care of the Yellowstone National Park is preferable to the employment of a civilian Superintendent, and it is not unlikely that Secretary Lamar will make recommendations to the coming Congress that for the present no further appropriation for the salary of a civilian Superintendent be made. The Park has never been better managed than under Captain Moses Harris, of the First Infantry, who has had charge of it since a partisan quarrel in Congress threw Colonel Weir, of Missouri, out of his job as Superintendent into a better one as Chief of Division in the Pension Office, and the Secretary is disposed to leave the Park in the hands of army officers.

"It is cheaper," said a Chief of Division of the Interior Department, "and as long as we have no law to cover offenses in the Park, discipline among visitors will be better maintained. One of our greatest hindrances in the management of the Park has been the lack of jurisdiction over it by any legally established authorities. At one time it was threatened that Congress would take the Park out of Wyoming and place it entirely in Montana by the management of Territorial boundaries, and Wyoming at once went to work and passed most stringent laws for the management of the Park, covering every species of offense that visitors might be guilty of. It also placed in the Park a special Justice of the Peace and constable, whose pay was made up also placed in the Park a special Justice of the Peace and constable, whose pay was made up from fees received and fines imposed. A portion of the latter also went to the informer or witnesses who made complaint against offenders. The immediate result was a conspiracy among the officers and other persons to increase their fees, and a number of nuncent persons were arrested and fined. This was continued until Congressman Payson, of Illinois, was fined $100 for leaving a fire burning in the Park. When an investigation was begun the officers found out who Payson was and remitted the exorbitant fine, but the Territory of Wyoming took cognizance of it son was and remitted the exorbitant fine, but the Territory of Wyoming took cognizance of it and the laws were repealed and the offices abolished. Since then the Park has been with-out a law of any kind, and the only thing an officer can do to an offender is to order him out of the Park. Under the circumstances we think the army officers in charge keep better discipthe army officers in charge keep better discip-line than a civilian could."

Mr. Cohen desired to have Daniel W. Strong recalled so that he might be re-examined by the attorneys for the railroad company, but Mr. Strong had left for San Diego. Mr. Pattison asked Mr. Cohen what he expected to prove by a re-examination.

[Copyright, 1887, by the California Associated Press.]

New York, August 14th.—[Special.]—The San's Washington special says: The President and Secreta y Whitney passed another anxious day over the cruiser problem, and have not announced any decision yet, although it is generally believed that, notwithstanding the wide difference between the bids of the Union Iron Works Company, the San Francisco firm will secure one of the contracts. Cramp has gone home with this idea in his head, and the representative of the Union Iron Works who remains here agrees with him.

Whitney dined with the President this evening, and they had a long conference on the troublesome question. The Secretary is credited with having made up his mind already in favor of San Francisco, and it remains for the President to decide whether $18,000 extra is too steep a price to pay for the political benefit which may be expected to accrue to him from giving such a flattering preference to the State of California, and securing such a fat job for a San Francisco establishment employing 1,300 voters. Mexico, (Mo.), August 14th.—Ann Bransteler (colord) left her two children, aged 5 years and 10 months respectively, in an eight-by-ten room closely shut up yesterday, while she went to a neighbor's house to spend the day. At night, when the room was opened, a horrible sight presented it elf. The older child was almost suffocated, and the younger boy was in the throes of death and a portion of the flesh of its breast and stomach had been eaten away by the older child, who was almost starved. The mother is under arrest, as the younger child will die.

Chairman McKim refused to allow this report to be read. This created much confusion, but the Chair was finally upheld. The Picnic Committee then reported that Governor Hill had been invited to review the Union parade on September 5th. At once there was hissing, and, amid groams, a proposition to invite the Governor was laid on the table. During the rest of the session there was a continual conflict between the Conservatives and Socialists, and the meeting broke up in great disorder.

The world is aware that an altogether too prevalent idea possesses a portion of the social membership that "honor" binds a man, who would be esteemed among his fellows, not to "give away" the crimes of those that may be discovered to him by reason of the relationship of principal and agent, or employer and employe, etc.

It is a false and dangerously vicious idea and one, unhappily, that obtains to a considerable extent-that is to say, there is a loose disposition to condemn and revile the man who, learning by reason of the trust reposed in him that crime is being committed by his principal or associate, makes revelation of it. The thief praises unmeasurably his "pal" who is "gritty enough to refuse to "peach," as thieves state it, to give up the offender and reveal him to the law. The murderer holds his accomplice as worthy his loathing and contempt who turns State's evidence. And for this class there may be entertained some grain of sympathy when one of their own kind seeks shelter by surrendering their fellows.

But the ethics of this code of honor have been expanded in these days, by a few, to include men guiltless themselves, and to constrain them by silence to partake of the criminality of those in authority over them. It is a pernicious doc-the position to a young man who solicited it, he was warned not to employ the man, because he could not be trusted. Surprised at such a judgment concerning one who stood well in the community, he was a stood well in the community, he was captured by Sheriff Thorne in Calaveras county. My escape was made in June, 1886. Prior to my escape I was treated well enough. I had a seat at the 'mutton chop' table for four years or more, and while steward in the officers' quarters had the same fare they did. Since my return to the prison I have been treated bellem.

As to Reeves, he is an opium fiend in whom we had much trouble in breaking him of the habit when he came trom San Quentin. He has a girl with whom he who stood well in the community, he pressed his advisers for reasons for their objections. He was thereupon told that the proposed assistant was "unreliable,' because, should his principal become "involved" in his accounts or maladminister and divert his trust, the deputy would certainly "give him away." And this peculiar idea of "honor," rectitude and Had not an opportunity to wash my face duty, was boldly advanced under oath, and the insincerity of its advocacy cannot therefore be questioned. It is no wonder that the intelligent juror was so surprised by this new interpretation of the moral code that he pressed the witness to ex-

He said when he first went into solitary he was given a pair and a half of blankets, and use a conception of honor and of duty, that it may well amaze men of ordinary intelligence to find it nonchalantly aired amid the very droppings of justice. Yet it is a fact that such a code does obtain in practice, and to a greater extent than most people suppose. To refuse to "give away" is preached by a class, as one of the courageous traits of character, but fortunately the advocates possessing the of such a code, however honest they might were sick and they used these buckets frequently, they should have been emptied oftener, but were not. WHAT THE OFFICERS SAY.

Captain Chambers was the first officer Captain Chambers was the first officer called to rebut statements made by the prisoners. Convict Tommy Brown, said the witness, was among the third batch of prisoners transferred from San Quentin. He was put between the gates and did good that punishment to the solitary confine-service there. His general conduct was frankly it was of no use, but agreed to give him light work for the remainder of his time. He then made his attempt to escape. I believe his policy is to get transferred to San Quentin. When he says that I treated him badly, he simply tells a falsehood. I was told by Captain Aull that Brown is a very desperate man, who would take any chances to escape, and must not be allowed been and this prison four years ago. I think this punishment hurts me much more than constant confinement without limit. I think I would act differently if I had this business to go through again. I admit that I have been frequently punished for breaking rules. I would like to go to San Quentin. If the same officials stay here, I will have no show, and I might behave myself better would take any chances to escape, and must not be allowed near a norse, as he

We are always very careful about the food. I have been a miner and have lived on beans, and I believe these men live better in this prison than the average prospector r sheep-herder, who gets bacon and bread. Here the beans are well cooked. The cooking begins at 3 o'clock in the morning, and there is a fresh supply every day. I have offered to allow Brown to have exercise often, but he would not take it. Every solitary prisoner has the privilege of using the faucet for fresh water, washing, etc. Brown offered me the other day, if I would let him be detailed by the dog-kennel, to stand by the officers and testify in any way we wanted: The "stool-pigeon" is a convict who is willing to side with the officers. He is looked upon with scorn by his fellow prisoners. He has told all sorts of falsehoods. Of course he wanted to be put

as they wish.
Visiting Physician Durant testified: Brown is an old prisoner and like many others in confinement has many imaginary ailments. He sent hastily for me from Folsom, and said he had swallowed a tack and might die. I found no such symptoms in his case, or anything but nervousness. He acted like a woman with hysteria. Tommy Brown was a companionable fel-low, and his romantic career made him something of a favorite. Therefore he was well treated. Many prisoners abuse the privilege of calling for the doctor when there is nothing the matter with them. The witness refuted all the statements of Dick Reeves, showing the groundlessness of the convict's charges. Reeves had been under the doctor's care for some time. He would often watch other prisoners act against their welfare, and often engage in smuggling food to his fellows.

Captain Paull, the turnkey in charge of the prison solitary-corridor, related several circumstances in the cases of Brown and Reeves, denying statements by both with reference to the provisions made for the

SOME PENOLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS Secretary of State Hendricks was called and testified that he was a Prison Director for three years, and had examined many

Hendricks—I believe the law should be changed so that many would be removed from association with all humankind; that they be confined in an isolated place, restrained from reproduction of their species

Mr. Hendricks, continuing his evidence, stated that he believed really that in many cases constant solitary confinement tended to affect men by insanity. There are men whom no official can depend upon as reformable so long as the mind and body are together. He believed that an incorrigible prisoner should be kept confined until he shows signs of mending.

Director Boggs—Mr. Filcher, you seem to be opposed to solitary confinement alto-Filcher-No: I am in favor of confineent, not extreme though. I once advocated before the Legislature the practice of flogging wife-beaters. John Knight, being next called, testified: I was in San Quentin in 1878 for burglary in the second degree, and I am here now for burglary and grand larceny from Ala-meda county. I came here on March 11, 1882, and I am 27 years of age. I have been in solitary confinement for the last twenty-five months on the charge of aiding prisoners to escape. the quarry or anywhere.

The records show that Knight in 1882 was sentenced to solitary confinement sixty-three days for abuse of and gross impudence to officers. He was let out in thirty-three days by order of the doctor when sick, but put on bread and water again when charged with having opium pipes, smuggling letters and aiding fellow-prisoners to escape.

Knight (continuing) said: The weapon found in my possession was to protect my-self against "Blueskin." He is a fighter, who intended to kill me. He is a crank on pugilism, of which he talks solely day and night. "Blueskin" threatened to gouge out my eyes and cut my throat if ever he saw me when we were out to get water in the corridor. He had a chance to assassin-Reeves expressed the belief that Brown was really a stool-pigeon.

"SHOWERED" IN SAN QUENTIN

Ezra Knapp, foreman of the quarry, related his experience with Knight. The latter had peculiar spells, at times was unmanageable. He detailed with particularity his many acts of insubordination and defiance. He demoralized the other prisoners and he had been conveiled to recent ers, and he had been compelled to report him to the captain of the guard three or four times. Mr. Knapp, in conclusion, added: "When I give up a man there is no use for anyone else to try him."

Dr. Durant said the solitary confinement would not tell on an able-bodied man for ten or twelve years. Thought Knight a half-breed Indian and Mexican; most of those people are tainted with scrofulus troubles and they do not have the strength of constitution of a white man.

Patrick Welsh, who is in for six years for burglary, was the next witness. He, too, had been confined in solitary for fighting. He had been in close confinement for eighty-eight days. He says he has nothing to complain of now. Has had all the food, exercise, etc., he wants since the 11th of July. He admitted to having had a great

" I remained there two years and got into no trouble. I wanted to see Director Hendricks about my case on a petition for a pardon. Captain Paull reached me before I had a chance to address the Director, who was in the corridor, and I was ordered away. Hot words passed, and I was confined. I wanted to get my blankets, specta-cles, pillow, etc., but he would not let me on bread and water, then got sick and the doctor refused to treat me. It was a job to get the officials into trouble. An Examiner reporter named Lawrence was here, and visited several of the prisoners in the cor-ridor. The prisoners agreed on the story they would tell, complaining of the lack of exercise, poor food, etc. The convicts talked about it among themselves from cell to cell. I was spoken to about it. I heard all about the job, and the stories of Abbott, Knight and other convicts. One of the boys said that Lawrence's brother used to run with him in San Francisco. The re-porter was outside taking down the stories as each one agreed to tell his.'

The witness was cross-examined severel by Directors Filcher and Boggs, and he stated that he believed the object his fellow-convicts had in an investigation was to oust the present management of the insti-tution and get transerred, perhaps, to San Quentin. He had no fear of telling the James McCarty, the next witness called, stated: I am here to serve five years for petty larceny, second offense, from San Francisco. Have been in the solitary twenty-one days. Don't know why, but suppose because some job was put up on me by other prisoners. They scheme against one another. Officers should not believe the stories told by prisoners. I have been three weeks and a month without an opportunity of washing my face. Captain Pauli ill-treated me the worst. All the men made a great deal of noise, and I admit that I made considerable myself. They put shackles on me for kicking on the door, when I did not do so. I was confined with the worst man in the prison, Hunt.

"Old man Hunt gets into all sorts of mischief and trouble, for which I get blamed and punished. He is not a safe man, and would kill me if he had the show." Ely's Cream Balm was recommended to me by my druggist as a preventive to Hay Fever. Have been using it as directed since the 9th of August, and have found it a specific for that much dreaded and loathsome disease. For ten years or more I have been a great sufferer each year, from August 9th titl frost, and have tried many alleged remedies for its cure, but Ety's Cream Balm is the only preventive I have ever found. THE PRODIGAL.

Sermon by Rev. Thos. Filben at Centra M. E. Church Last Night. At the Central M. E. Church last evening Rev. Mr. Filben preached upon the theme of the prodigal son. An outline of the discourse is as follows:

The story of the prodigal, as contained in this 15th chapter of St. Luke, is an old story, and with the accessions of Oriental life, but human nature in its essential features varies so little with times or countries that it has application to do. that it has application to-day; and the young man of the story has companions to-day. He is still a type of youthful way-

We first know him as despising the restraints of his home life and early training, that home a goodly home, and that trainvictims, or assume a kind of charmed life for themselves that insures them immunity. Men are like moths; every several chasm of other men's destruction, yet to most men experience is like the stern lights lent way; but youth, especially, will not learn it. Probably the claims of religion were strongly urged upon the young man in his home. It were only an average Jew-ish home if this were so; the Jew was faithful to the divine commands concerning the instruction of children in religion. Young people resent this, and yet it is as much a parent's duty to give right instruction in morals and religion, as to give right ideas of life. Attendance on the Synagogue was irksome, and he promised himself freedom from this restraint when his years came. But the prodiced made a mistake, he leaved the prodigal made a mistake; he learned too late that his father knew something when he warned him of the results of sin and sought to set and to hold his feet in right life-paths. And his greatest mistake lay in thinking that the remedy for all this lay in getting hold his feet in right life-paths. And his greatest mistake lay in thinking that the remedy for all this lay in getting away from home. This is not a panacea for all the ills of youthful life, this breaking away. All wanderers confess this with sad eloquence by turning back with longad eloquence, by turning back with longings to the very place and day of these re-license that release implied, but the record is he found it very unsatisfactory. He put as much distance between himself and his home as he could, and tested the kind of the following stan: Major C. H. Hubbard, Major Gardner, Major W. C. Van Fleet, Major W. S. Leake, Major F. D. Ryan, Major J. Hahn, Major A. Caminetti, Major W. J. Davis, Captain and Aid de-'e he had been yearning to indulge under his father's roof, but to little profit. His way was all down hill. This boy of clean, pure home "wasted his substance in riotous living, and devoured his living with harlots." Once cast adrift from the moorings of propriety, and he is out on the boundless sea. Yet his case is not exceptional. Many young men in every city tional. Many young men in every city—in this city—are just in his place, having left home, and decided to leave the traditions of that home behind, and have wrecked and are wrecking. Such may in wrecked and are wrecking. Such may in the first on six that home behind, and have the way willing. Lynch went just the first on six that home behind, and have the way willing. Lynch went just the way willing. Lynch went just the wrecked and are wrecking. Such may in their change of surroundings think it smart to try the wings of their new-found freedom, but vainly. Right-minded men do not admire the effort, nor esteem highly these exhibitions of independence and manliness, so called, while for themselves it is disaster. The prodigal kept going lower and lower. Yet, despite his degradation, and painfully conscious of it, he would not at the first return—he submitted to anything rather than return, even to the menial, and to a Jew, repulsive menial, and to a Jew, repulsive occupation of feeding swine. But the wages of his occupation would not bring him the necessaries of life. The surroundings and return of sin will not satisfy any one. No man is satisfied in sin till his conscience is drugged, and then there are waking spells in this stupor. The soul of man was not made for husks and mire. It was made to soar and for royal food. Bread had to come down from heaven to be its food. The prodigal learned wisdom in his extremity, by thought of comparison of his egraded estate with his birthright and his and discharging firearms within the cit waking up to this the Scriptures call coming to himself. His companions in riot and sin may have thought him mad, but God terms it full sanity. Religion with its restraints are rational, and it is folly for men to beat out their lives against these ramparts of the Eternal. Religion is part of our furnishing, and uprightness is our natural employment; we will be coming to ourselves when we see this. Since his privilege, his duty, his folly he manifests a true repentance. In this great stress of it he seems fearful of not humbling himself enough. He frets to return, and his tather is represented as waiting for him.

His confession is interrupted by the free bestowment of blessing—he receives reconciliation and restoration

The regular monthly shoot of the Forester Gun Club was held at Agricultural Park vesterday. There were many shooters present, but only a few members of the club, and those competing in the contest for the medal numbered only eight. John Gerber was the best shot of the day, winning the gold medal with a score of 11 out of a possible 12. As he had won it twice before it is now his property, to be put of E. J. Kennedy, tried in the United States away with his other trophies. There was District Court at San Francisco last week some interesting pool shooting both before and after the main match. Captain Birdsall and a squad from Company A did the honor of serving as escort, and in a short time after arriving the Woodlanders and Nevadians had possession of almost all the street corners, and were observed at helicity of the product of the street corners.

At the depot the crowd was a jam, but in due time a train of twelve cars, all one must scorch wings in the tempting dame. Men make very little use of the experiences of others. While our eyes experiences of others. While our eyes man, was the center of attraction. "Let were put before that we might see the me see the baby soldiers," was the urgent chasm of other men's destruction, yet to most men experience is like the stern lights of the ship which only illumine the track itself has passed. There is a more excellent way; but youth, especially, will not the Codets at the code of the code o to the Cadets. At 9 o'clock the train moved out, and the sweet strains of "The Girl I Left Behind Me," played by the First Artillery Band, were wafted on the breeze as the boys in blue disappeared from view.

Company A, under command of First Lieutenant Birdsall goes into camp in good condition, and expects to win laurels on the tented field.

Company B, Captain Cook commanding, received many comments for excellence of drill on the way to the depot.

Company E, Captain G. W. Safford, turned out in full force. They are a fine-looking lot of soldiers and will prove worthy competitors in the week's drill. Company G goes in command of Captain T. B. Hall. They are already well drilled,

Colonel Guthrie, commanding, will be straints. The memory of home is the last anchor to drag in every day life; and the last cable to snap in any experience, even in dissoluteness. At 2 r. M. Company C arrived from Nevada City, under command of Lieutenant George Nihell, a most efficient officer. He was ably assisted by Second Lieutenant P. F. Simons. Thirty members out of 50 only attended, but others intend going to camp during the week. They were met at the depot by an escort and conducted to the armory, where arms were stacked, and the young men given the liberty of the city. Captain Rapp, who has for several years been the commanding officer being under the shadow of the recent trial, was not in attendance.

At 4 o'clock the Woodland train brought Company F, consisting of forty men, under command of Captain Wm. Curson. First Lieutenant T. G. Hughes and Second Lieutenant J. G. Lee were present, but devoted most of their time in looking after a mysterious-looking box labeled with the war cry of Camp Stoneman, "Remember Tripe and the soldier boys, and we have no doubt will be the source of many a camp story during the coming week.

Children stub their shoes out on the toe for one or two reasons. Either the shoe is too short, or the upper leather extends beyond the sole, and thus gets the brunt of the wear. This latter difficulty is now overcome by sinking the inner sole, so that the upper leather does not project, and the sole gets the wear and tear; cost more than ordinary shoes, but will last longer. In the end it's economy to buy them.

FOLSOM PRISON.

there will undoutedly be other assaults, and some of them will surely result fatally. We have looked for a slight increase of uneasiness among the prisoners during the period when the building should be partly uncovered by the removal of the old roof to be replaced by the iron roof, but the publication of charges against the officers has carried the feeling of uneasiness so far that it has been necessary to suspend all work on the farm and concentrate the guards on the line immediately around the prison building, so as to discourage the plotters from making attempts to escape. One formidable plot was thwarted by the arrest of the ringleaders. Others were stopped by assigning the prisoners to other work, so as to prevent concert of action. The Warden then read the report on the issues of the investigation, which was followed by an oral resume of the case of Vickery, detailing the circumstances of the scovery of the plot to escape and the arrest of the conspirators. About 2 P. M., after an executive session of a couple of hours, the Commission reported as follows:

Director Devlin moved that the following be adopted:

In the matter of inquiring into the solitary confinement and punishment at Folsom Prison, the State Board of Prison Directors, having fully investigated the matter of solitary confinement and punishment at the Folsom Prison, and having heard the testimony of all prisones having s atements to make on that subject, and the sworn testimony of the officers, and having considered the replies received from the wardens of various prisons in the United States, now agree on the following conclusion:

First—The only punishment now in vogue at the Folsom Prison is what is known as solitary confinement. This mode of punishment, in a greater or less degree, is also followed in all Eastern prisons, and in those prisons other work, so as to prevent concert of action.

One prisoner, Hiram Vickery, has exhibited a very reckless spirit recently, and I think he would have carried out his purpose, even if he had no followers. His disregard for his own life was shown a few weeks ago, when he purposely fell from the roof to the stone floor in the prison building. There is no doubt that he intended to kill himself. Since his arrest and confinement he has refused to eat or drink, although food and water are constantly before him; he declares it to be his inten into to starve himself to death. At the physician's suggestion I have directed that he be sustained by injections of beef tea and brandy. He is a man of great determination of character, and may find some way to kill himself. He remained in solitary for sixteen months in San Quentin, but he would not accept his release on condition to withdraw his threat to kill Captain McAllister; on each occasion he repeated his determination to kill the captain of the guard. Vickey's associates in the plot—Joseph Marshall and Joseph Bisson—having previously lost their credits by attempting to second—Solitary punishment, as practiced at Folsom. Second—Solitary punishment, as practiced at Folsom, is as follows: Every cell in the prison is of the same size and similar in construction. There are no dungeons in the prison. On the south side of the prison there are forty cells: twelve of these are those in which prisoners in solitary confinement are prisoners. Over the middle row of holes in the cell door a hood is placed, which prevents the entry of tools or weapons, and in some degree shuts out the light, but not the air. Above these solitary cells, however, an opening is made in the walls weapons, and in some degree shuts out the light, but not the air. Above these solitary cells, however, an opening is made in the walls for the admission of light and air, with which the other cells, with a few exceptions, are not provided. The cell floors are of cement, the same as the other cells.

Third—The prisoners in solitary confinement receive the same food and clothing of the lower grade of prisoners, as the other prisoners, which is ample in quantity. The rules of the prison are that the prisoners shall have a bath once a week, or thereabouts, and that they shall be given ample exercise. We find that they have had sufficient baths and have had as much exercise as the convenience of the prison and the safety of the prisoners would permit.

Fourth—The following prisoners are now in solitary confinement, and have been for the following periods: No. 437, H. Hunt, convicted of murder, 19 months: No. 929, Wm. Smidt, robbery, second termer, 19 and one-half months: No. 621, Patrick Welch, grand larceny, second terme, 24 and one-half months: No. 635, Charles Abbott, murder, second termer, 21 months: No. 109, Tom Brown, stage robbery, second termer, was confined for 13 months, released two weeks aga, and put back again for a murderous assault upon a prisoner: No. 443, John Smith, alias Blueskin, robbery and garroting at Golden Gate Park, San Francisco, second termer, 23 months: No. 1,019, Dick Reeves, burgiary, second termer, 2 months; No. 841, J. W. Barry, assault to murder, one year: No. 1,044, J. T. McCarthy, petit larceny, second offense, 21 days; No. 1,258, Ah Ching, burglary, 21 months; James Winters, assault to murder and burglary, third termer, 21 months.

Fifth—All these prisoners have made attempt onths. Fifth—All these prisoners have made attempt

Fifth—All these prisoners have made attempt to kill, attempts to escape, or have been guilty of flagrant breaches of the rules of the prison, and should receive severe punishment therefor. There are three insane prisoners who are kept in solitary confinement by direction of the physician. Winters has been placed in solitary confinement suree his commitment, because he was considered dangerous and desperate. He is either insane or feigning insanity. We believe he is feigning. sixth—The matter of punishment is a matter that must be left to a great extent with the officers of the prison. The evidence before us shows that the tendency in the Eastern States is loward making sclitary confinement the principal punishment, for the reason that it does not legrade or humiliate the prisoner.

Seventh—We believe that for incorrigible prisoners a separate institution should be provided, but as there is no such place provided in this State, we believe that they should be separated from the other prisoners.

this state, we believe that they should be separated fron the other prisoners.

Eighth—We find that the Warden and other officers have not been cruel or inhuman in their treatment of prisoners, and that the incorrigibility of the above named prisoners deserved the most severe discipline, and we indorse their action in the matter.

The cells used for dungeons or solitary confinement of prisoners at Folsom are the same as the other cells, except that the ventilating holes in masonry work at the back and bottom of the cells are closed to prevent contraband articles being received through them from other prisoners, and the main aperture in the iron door, a hole about one and a half by six inches and from one and one-half-inch holes are covered by an iron hood, intended to darken the cell. Through the wall, over the door on a level with the ceiling, is a hole varying from eight to twelve inches long, by about two inches deep, to allow the escape of foul air. Some of the other cells have not yet got this last named aperture.

There are tweive of these so-called dark of dungeon "cells, and that portion of the coridor on which they front, or open, is separated from the balance of the south corridor by loard partitions. The furniture in the solitary or dungeon cells consists of a narrow straw mattress leid on the stone flow blanks straw mattress leid on the stone flow blanks straw or dungeon cells consists of a narrow straw mattress laid on the stone floor, blankets and a slop-bucket. In each of threse cells were found from one to two prisoners, suffering confinement for various infractions of prison rules. George Campbell, an insane man, is confined in his cell, and Richard Steffney, now in the hospital, but up to within a few days has been in one of the solitary cells above described. Those prisoners, whose date of confinement dated back a year or more, present, with few exceptions, a ghastly paleness, are more or less emaciated, and some of them are suffering more or less from sickness, arising, in most instances, from derangement of whose date of confinement dated back a year or more, present, with few exceptions, a ghastly paleness, are more or less emaciated, and some of them are suffering more or less from sickness, arising, in most instances, from derangement of bowels and stomach. Their food, except when they are quite sick and placed on hospital diet, consists of bread, beans and coffee, with occasionally meat for dinner and mush for breakfast, or the same as is provided for the poorest table at the general mess.

Since the tenth of July last, the time they were visited and interviewed by three of the Directors, all testimony agrees that their treatment has been first rate. Their cells have been treshly whitewashed and cleaned, opportunities for bathing and exercise have been emptied twice a day. Prior to that time, buckets were emptied but once a day, and as to their opportunities for bathing and exercise have been emptied twice a day. Prior to that time, buckets were emptied but once a day, and as to their opportunities for bathing and exercise testimony differs, officers claiming that they had been exercised by walking in the corrider once or twice, or oftener, each week, and had been given reasonably frequent opportunities for bathing. Prisoners testified that they had been deprived of both exercise and bath, for from six to ten months at a time. We are bound to give credence to the testimony of the officers, as against that of the prisoners. Smidt, who has made repeated attempts to break out of jail, is ornamented with what is known as an Oregon boot. Barry at one time was shackled, for persisting in kicking his cell door, and at another time was bucked and gagged for bellowing. A number of letters from Wardens of Eastern penitentiaries, all in response to a question from Warden McComb concerning their opinions of solitary confinement, have been submitted to us, and while they show this character of punishment is generally resorted to, as one among other menns of subduing refractory prisoners, they in no instance related where,

To the Honorable State Board of Prison Directors—GENTLEMEN: Since my last report the discipine has been very much disturbed by the publication of charges reflecting severely on the officers of the prison. Even the best of prisoners are affected by such charges, no matter how willing they may be to stand by the officers in any sudden emergency or in upholding the discipline under ordinary circumstances. The prisoner is held here against bis will, and the officers represent the law that has deprived him of his liberty. Up to a certain point there can be displayed a kind of gratitude for good treatment, and in many instances this becomes loval devotion to those who have softened the hardships of enforced confinement, but among the mass hostility is only quieted; the agitators work on this feeling of hostility and silence the scrubles of those who may be opposed to array-

The fracas between Dick Reeves and Tommy Brown in the interval, is the outgrowth of this condition of affairs. The tough prisoners believed that Tommy Brown intended to refute the testimony of those who complained of lack of exercise, denial of baths, etc., and to intimidate him from telling the t-uth about the concoted story of the complainers. Beeves contrived the pretext for a quarrel, so as to injure Brown with the assistance of other refractory prisoners who would manage to be about. Frown defended himself and made a murderous assault on Reeves, which was only saved from being fatal by the knife striking the rib.

Vickey's associates in the plot—Joseph Marshall and Joseph Bisson—having previously lost their credits by attempting to escape, have nothing to lose, except the liberty of the grounds.

There may be other plots which have not come to the knowledge of the officers, as we cannot so accurately gauge the prisoners under the present conditions of unrest. A part of the plot mentioned included seizing some officer or freeman, to be carried past the post as a hostage. In a few days the roof over the cell building will be finished, and one source of danger will be removed, but it will be some time before we can count upon being as safe as before the agitation.
